Main Question

Educational points for a patient seeking Substance Use Treatment, is on Suboxone, but continues to use THC and Fentanyl

Demographic Information

31 yo white male, unemployed, completed 11th grade and got GED. Currently homeless, was admitted to VCU after being kicked out of his Substance Use Treatment Program for testing positive for Suboxone. Has been on Suboxone for 1.5 years but is also using other substances. Substance Use Disorder is primary diagnosis. No other significant past medical history, No past psychiatric history.

Background Information

Patient information was confirmed with his case worker. He was accepted to a Substance Use Treatment Center, but was accidentally transported to the wrong one that does not allow Suboxone. The patient threw away his Suboxone and attempted to go cold turkey to attend the program, per their rules. He initially tested negative for Suboxone, but on subsequent testing on Day 2 while in the program, he tested positive, it was suspected that he was using it against the rules, and he was kicked out.

Previous Interventions

The patient's Case Manager states that he is arranging a bed at the correct Substance Use Program that allows Suboxone use as a treatment. The patient's outpatient Suboxone of 8-2 BID was restarted.

Plans for Future Treatment/ Patient's Goal

What education is the most pertinent that this patient have prior to discharge? He wants to stop using substances but admits to fentanyl and THC use. Aside from the danger of overdose, what are the other serious complications?

Other Relevant Information

He was provided education that using Suboxone long term might be a life long treatment plan and expressed frustrations that his family believes the misconception that he is replacing one substance for another.

Main Question

Educational points for a patient seeking Substance Use Treatment, is on Suboxone, but continues to use THC and Fentanyl
